REMARKS

00-01 This entry is dedicated to the unknown, unrated and unnecessary yeoman at NAVPERS who so faithfully, and capably, reads, notes, files and forgets my continuing and constant efforts through the year.

Now read, good yeoman, and you shall see
 How TTHRESHER met the best year yet and first of '63.
 The temperature was zero or maybe just below
 And the winds whistled sharply, from stern to open bow.
 The skies were clear, although to the waters west
 Appeared a few broken clouds - call it "scattered" at best.
 It hardly bears repeating, - you must know as well as I
 That TTHRESHER lies in Dry Dock just as high and dry
 As on previous days weeks months
 (Forgive the crossovers, please, Yeo, just this once)
 Not a soul is missing, we've mustered our whole flock
 The ship still stands, with all hands, in #2 Dock

ADDITIONAL REMARKS

UNITED STATES SHIP THRESHOLD SSN 593 Tuesday, 1 January, 63
(Day) (Date) (Month)

00-04 (cont'd)

Or did you believe that we might leave
Our protected spot on New Year's Eve?
Still receiving AC power, as reported before with miscellaneous services brought from those units of the Fleets, Atlantic and Reserve
Are still joined with us in our private preserve.
At dock or on block, moored with wire or manila hump
Spring line or breast line, we're all at PORTSMOUTH, New Hampshire.
There has been no demotion, or significant promotion
In this misbegotten, all but forgotten corner of the ocean
And the most rank of us on AECUS is SOLA still you see.
(Best you forget, the number yet, remains as ARC-3.)
Thus ends my missive for tonight, the very first this year
Though past performance indicates, not too very, least I fear!
